

Join Our Dynamic Team as a Political Journalist

The Namibian is looking for a multimedia designer trainee with a passion for storytelling through visuals to join our one year training programme.

Responsibilities:

- Produce political news and features across all platforms.
- Generate exclusive political stories and interviews
- Initiate ideas for political investigations and analysis
- Pursue enterprise stories covering the presidency, parliament, municipalities, party politics and others
- Produce video and audio content
- Generate and maintain a strong network of sources
- Work closely with editors and the team to present journalism in innovative ways and across platforms.
- Ensure all reporting is fact-checked, legally compliant, and meets high ethical and professional standards.
- Manage multiple stories under tight deadlines, ensuring accuracy and clarity.

Requirements:

- A degree in journalism, communication, political science, economics or relevant field
- Excellent writing and analytical skills, with a passion for producing effective and insightful journalism.
- Excellent knowledge and understanding of the politics
- Analyse and interpret political events at high speed and have a passion for telling stories on digital platforms.

Qualified candidates are invited to submit their CV and supporting documents detailing relevant experience to, hr@namibian.com.na. Please indicate the position name in the subject line.

Please submit a resume, cover letter and 4-6 clips with your application.

The incumbent will report to the News Editor

For enquiries call Tel: +264 61 279 681/657.

Only shortlisted candidates will be contacted.

Closing date: 10 October 2025

Celebrating 40 years of FREE PRESS EXCELLENCE